HEALTHCARE OPTIONS

Freestanding ER Planned for Pelham

By: Ainsley Allison

Ascension St. Vincent's has asked for state approval to build a freestanding emergency department, primary care, and multispecialty space in Pelham. The project is designed to meet the growing need for healthcare services in the community and has strong support from city officials in Pelham and across Shelby County.

"We all want our citizens to receive the best possible care at a convenient location," said Pelham Mayor Gary W. Waters. "But as a retired fire chief, I know there are times when minutes count and a facility like this could make the difference between life or death. We are thrilled for St. Vincent's to serve our citizens when they are most in need of help."

The site for the new facility is located off Interstate 65 at exit 242, more commonly known as the "tank farm exit". In addition to emergency services, the building will provide space for Ascension St. Vincent's and UAB Medicine to offer patients access to primary and specialty care.

Half Shell Oyster House

Half Shell Oyster House opened earlier this month to rave reviews. The Gulfport, Mississippi-based restaurant group chose Pelham's Campus No. 124 as the location for their newest venture.

Marketing Director Kelsey Griffin said the grand opening was a huge success. "If this is a precursor to the future, we can't wait!" She said many guests shared their feedback on their dining experience. "We love to hear feedback in person. We take what our guests say very seriously. The feedback has been overwhelmingly positive so far, and we feel truly embraced by the community."

While there are many seafood options on the menu, Griffin said there's much more. "Our menu is a unique presentation of Southern cuisine and New Orleans fare coming together in one dish. Some of our most popular dishes aren't seafood. We have something for everyone."

Mountain High Outfitters

Developers of The Canopy recently announced a new anchor tenant. Birmingham-based Mountain High Outfitters will take over the former Southland Log Homes cabin, which is visible from Interstate 65 and sits at the corner of State Park Road and Amphitheater Road. Hopes are high that the new location will conveniently serve outdoor enthusiasts at Oak Mountain State Park.

"This amazing opportunity to continue to foster the active and outdoor lifestyle is something I value and am beyond excited to be a part of," said Christopher Groom, Founder, CEO, and Owner of Mountain High.

"We will have a unique footprint in the cabin, and our offerings will include more paddle sports from kayaks, paddleboards, and floats to the hiking and trail running items needed to enjoy the area, as well as many of your favorite everyday lifestyle items. We look forward to creating an even stronger community and hosting events from the new cabin location," Groom added.
